COMMENTARY

Market Review

- The Japanese market fell slightly in February. The month started off on an upbeat note in response to improved economic data. However, concerns over fiscal woes in Europe triggered a sharp setback. Later, stability returned on news that the EU may bail out Greece, with Japan surging as the overseas market rallied.

Fund Activity & Outlook

- We continued to favour cyclical stocks in the Fund during February.
- The Fund sold Yokohama Bank and Shinetsu Chemical, using the proceeds to purchase Mitsubishi Electric and Hitachi High-Technologies. Mitsubishi indicated a rapid improvement in productivity in third quarter results driven by the electric machinery business. Hitachi High-Technologies is expected to benefit from a recovery in the SPE market.

- The best performing sector was utilities while the worst performer was consumer discretionary. Defensive sectors outperformed in general.
- A large positive contributor during the month was Kuraray. Third quarter earnings outpaced market consensus mainly in the LCD film business. The worst performer was Denso which was affected by the recall issue of Toyota.
- In the short term, the market may consolidate due to concerns over the credit market and tightening monetary policy in China. On the other hand, recovery in corporate earnings is likely to drive stocks upward over the mid term. We maintain an overweight in cyclical stocks.
